

There are five farm animals for every human being in the world.

Four out of five of these animals are in the developing world.